About Our Guests of Honor

We have three amazing guests of honor at Arisia this year. Each of them will be participating in a wide variety of panels, as well as the art show and masquerade.

N.K. Jemisin, Locus Award winning writer of the Inheritance trilogy is our author guest of honor. She has written five novels, many short stories as well as a blog, and has spent several years in our non-intuitive city.

Lee Moyer, the award winning illustrator, designer, and terraformer of fantasy worlds is our artist guest of honor. In his prolific career, he has produced illustrations for many books and games. He once created 1000 pieces in a single year. Lee has 100 pieces of art here at Arisia.

Colette H. Fozard, Director of Operations for Sakura Matsuri is our fan guest of honor this year. She has been keeping cons running for two decades (including Arisia), and has even turned her experience into a career!

Theatrical Sci-Fi

For the first time at Arisia, we are presenting three original science-fiction short plays done by local authors Carl Danielson and Janet Johnston. These three plays are thought-provoking, comic, and very timely. Come see them on Sunday starting at 3PM on our Small Tent stage in Grand Ballrooms D/E.

Wait, Where'd She Go?

For those missing seeing Heidi Hooper at this year's Arisia, our fannish friend and talented dryer lint Artist extraordinaire has garnered yet another Niche Award for excellence in innovation in fine craft nomination for her art. Her friends wish her well winning this year's award. You go girl!

Faffles

This year, if you turn in a volunteer time sheet, you are eligible to win a raffle! Yesterday's winners are Jeremy Thorpe, who won 2 AMC Gold Ticket movie passes, and Rob Castello, who won the game Munchkin. (By the way, if you two are reading this, you have to come pick up your prizes at HQ or you might lose them!) There will be four more raffles this con, so you still have a chance to win.
